Fauley, Emeritus of Music, Dies Friday of Heart Ailment

Funeral services were held yesterday for Leon E. Fauley, 70, professor emeritus of music at the University, who died of a heart ailment Friday in Wood County Hospital.

Mr. Fauley, who specialized in the teaching of voice, retired last year after 34 years as a faculty member of the School of Music.

While at the University, he directed the Men's Varsity Quartet and the Men's Glee Club, a group he had organized.

A native of Kansas, Mr. Fauley received his bachelor of music degree at the University of Kansas and was graduated from Columbia University with a masters degree in 1928.

He was alumnus adviser of Kappa Sigma social fraternity during its first five years as a national organization and for the past four years has been faculty adviser for the group's chapter here.

He was a charter member of the Columbia University chapter of Phi Mu Alpha Sinfonia, men's music fraternity, and he founded a chapter of that fraternity at the University.

LEON E. FAULEY

Mr. Fauley was a Danforth Associate for eight years and often taught private lessons on Saturdays at the Bach Conservatory in Toledo.

Mr. Fauley held memberships with the American Association of University Professors, the Bowling Green Kiwanis Club, and the First Presbyterian Church.

"Alcestis" To Open Thursday

University Theatre will present the classic Greek drama, "Alcestis," by Euripides, at 8:15 p.m. Thursday, Friday, and Saturday in the Main Auditorium.

The play is based on an ancient legend of reincarnation. Queen Alcestis agrees to prolong the life of her husband, Admetus, King of Thessaly, by dying in his place.

On the day of her death, Admetus' friend, Heracles, appears at the palace, asking for hospitality. Rather than turn him away, Admetus conceals the identity of the woman for whom the kingdom is mourning and welcomes Heracles to the palace. After feasting and drinking his fill, the slightly inebriated Heracles discovers that Alcestis has died. To reward Admetus for his hospitality even in time of sorrow, Heracles rescues the queen from death and restores her to life.

The prime concern of the play is not with the martyr Alcestis, but with Admetus, who accepts the ultimate sacrifice.

"The play is difficult because it is a tragicomedy," said Dr. Charles Boughton, director. "Blending the two is quite hard."

Much movement is used by the chorus of "Alcestis," according to Dr. Boughton. "The chorus isn't natural. It is dealing with patterns of movement in space. But this is movement with a destination," he said.

Dr. Boughton cited the conflict of image as a unique characteristic of the script. The whole play is a struggle of life and death, giving the feeling that Admetus is sometimes as much dead as alive.

The setting, designed by Andrew T. Tsubaki, speech instructor, is modern, strange, almost barbaric, standing achievement in one or more of the following areas: scholarship, athletics, publications; student government, social, and religious affairs and speech, music, drama, and other arts. They will be initiated in Prout Chapel at 5 p.m., Thursday. A banquet will follow in the Alumni Room. Martin L. Hanna, Bowling Green attorney and first recipient of the ODK Alumnus of the Year Award will speak.

Martin Wins Miss BGSU, Tries Again For Miss Ohio

Sharon Martin, a 19-year-old sophomore and a public address major, captured the Miss BGSU crown in the Ballroom Friday night, and added that title to her already long list of beauty contest victories.

The Fremont, Ohio coed now will be entered directly into the Miss Ohio beauty pageant for her second year in a row. Last year, she entered the contest under the title of Miss Vacationland, placed as a finalist, and won a talent award. She also has held such beauty titles as Ohio Dairy Princess and Miss Central Ohio.

In the talent competition Friday, Miss Martin quoted excerpts from the Diary of Ann Frank in drawing a comparison of that work to the idea of hope for the future of the United States. Later, she modeled a full-length white satin evening gown. Her measurements: 37-24-37.

In the ten-member finalist competition, Joyce Vaughn, a sophomore from Dayton, placed first runner-up; Linda Appleby, a freshman from Toledo, was second runner-up; Kathy Hearn, a freshman from Cleveland, won fourth place; and Judy Wilson, a senior from Fremont, placed fifth.

The Miss BGSU contest is sponsored by Alpha Tau Omega social fraternity.

A blue and black bow worn over the left coat pocket of a man's suit is a mark of honor and distinction today.

The 11 University juniors and seniors tapped into Omicron Delta Kappa, the national leadership honor society, in early morning hours today will be wearing the distinctive bows throughout the day. ODK is considered one of the "highest honors" a male student at the University can receive.

The men were selected for outstanding achievement in one or more of the following areas: scholarship, athletics, publications; student government, social, and religious affairs and speech, music, drama, and other arts. ## Letters To The Editor

Dear Administration . . .

Dear Sir:

Harshman Quadrangle, the newest and most beautifully architected building on the Bowling Green campus, is insufficiently facilitated for its 1,400 residents.

Each dormitory has a laundry room with three washers and three dryers which are supposed to adequately service 350 students. Due to improper wiring and servicing, these machines are worthless to the student as they do not work and when they do, they take three hours to complete their cycles. For lack of machines, the students of Harshman will continue to drape their clothes in the windows to dry thus depreciating the Quadrangle's beauty.

Lighting in the lounges is so unsatisfactory that the students can not play cards or study at specially designated tables in these lounges. Are these lounges meant to be practical social rooms for the residents or dark love-making rooms?

The students of these dorms are complaining about many other impractical living facilities such as inadequate ironing and cooking utensils in their floor lounges, and the need for incinerators, which have been out of order since school began two and a half months ago.

Complaining to the head residents and getting no results, we are made to wonder where our complaints are going. We can see three possibilities why the administration has not solved our problems: either too much red tape or the companies the school buys from are lax, or the administration is not understanding to student needs and desires. How and when are our needs going to be met out at Harshman Quadrangle?

Rosalind Williams

Don't Stop Now

Dear Sir:

Congratulations and praise are long overdue for the students of BGSU. They have been demanding and achieving the responsibilities that will prove their own maturity. But don't stop now! Consider some of the following regulations. Investigate, evaluate, and give your decision.

Why the restrictions on upperclassmen visiting with freshmen in the residence halls? Shouldn't a mature person have the responsibility of deciding to whom he wants to talk? Why should IPC threaten a fraternity with social probation for violations of these restrictions? Why can't an upperclassman visit his own blood brother in the freshman residence hall? Why can't two sisters ride home together for vacation without Panhel threatening penalties for the sorority involved? Why these restrictions on the basic act of communication?

Why the grade average requirements for certain student offices and activities? Isn't a student in good standing entitled to all of the privileges and activities offered by a university? Don't all students pay an incidental fee which helps support these activities?

Why is a "D" called "passing" when it really is "failing"? Why can a student be dismissed from school for academic reasons even though he never fails a course? Are we overemphasizing the grade average? Shouldn't a person fail a given number of hours before he is failed out of school?

Otto F. Bauer
Ass't. Prof. of Speech

Spit Out That Gum

Dear Sir:

There was an occurrence on campus a few days ago which, while not affecting me personally, was disturbing because it illustrates the lack of concern some of our professors have for the academic welfare of the student.

Four students were suspended from a history class for two weeks for CHEWING GUM in that class! Granted, the class had been warned about gum chewing beforehand, but one can certainly understand how a lapse of memory could occur, especially since a test was being administered that day. As a result of being suspended from class, the students will miss two tests comprising nearly ten per cent of their final grade. And, as this is a freshman class, there is the possibility that this ten per cent loss in one course could be the difference between a successful year's average or a failing effort.

Does this action behoove a university professor or is it more comparable to that of a warden in a correctional institution?

Rogers Comments On Paging System

A. Roberts Rogers, director of the University Library, reported this week on the new paging system introduced last fall. "On the whole, the new system is working better than the old one of having people stand in line," he said. But, the Library is still crowded.

Dr. Rogers said the Library staff regrets the long waiting periods at busy times, but the faculty is simply being overtaxed far beyond its intended capacity. Because the Library has been used heavily in the last several weeks, student help employed, have been working extra hours to keep up the efficiency of the department during the rush, he stated.

The main reason for the current rush is attributed to students completing term papers, book reports, and special assignments before the end of the semester, said Dr. Rogers.

AWS Budget Deserves Study

By DIANNE SAVAGE
News Columnist

For four years I have been under the impression that my AWS dollar was helping to pay for the Big Sis-Li'l Sis picnic, or the Christmas Formal, or Freshman Orientation, or something equally as beneficial to all women on campus.

However, after looking over the AWS budget for the academic year 1964-65, I find it much more likely that my dollar was swallowed into the treasury, just to keep the organization operating.

Out of the total $3,646.75 collected this year (obviously more than five women held out), only $50 was spent for Freshman Orientation, the same amount as for the AWS Legislative Board Breakfast. It also seems that the annual Christmas Formal should rightfully be called the UAO Formal, since AWS only contributed $75 to the cause.

Let's face it, you couldn't even hire a union guitar player for $75. And the picnic? $10. Even the AWS Christmas Caroling got a larger share of the budget—$50.

On the brighter side, AWS does allot $600 for the Senior Breakfast, $725 for the Leadership Banquet, and $150 for the May Sing. There is $175 for the Style Show and Best-Dressed Girl Contest, too.

Now, where does the rest of the money go? The total operating expense for AWS was $1,285, which includes $275 for "brochures," $20 for the executive board picnic, $50 for gifts, and $80 for officer installation.

Best of all is the $400 we are paying to send our representatives to the national Association of Women Students Convention. Also among the list of expenses is a mysterious $25 for "Christmas." Seventy-five of us are paying for AWS stationary, and another 60 of us are footing the AWS telephone bill.

Even after adding up all these "necessities" for operating the all-powerful clique, it is interesting to note that there still remains a balance of $605.40 in the petty cash box.

Maybe the Leaders will throw some kind of party to polish off the rest of the funds. Since when do we have to pay dues to a profit-making organization? Yes, Always We Surrender.

Deaths In Viet Nam Called U.S. Folly

By GEORGE WALLACE
News Columnist

With the election safely past, plus a short cooling off period lest it appear that the whole thing was decided last summer, the United States now begins to engineer and maneuver for the pull out from yet another of those grand fiascos, which the country finds itself so singularly capable of accomplishing. This time it's Viet Nam—next stop Malaysia.

Viet Nam has been more than the usual exhibition of folly for the United States in terms of blood and money, which has poured into the jungles and rice paddies with no goal or purpose. We have done the same thing in Viet Nam on a smaller scale that we did in Korea: Expend men and munitions so as to make a good show, but not allow our soldiers to win (silly, meaningless notion of victory).

Had we gone about that conflict as though we meant it, at least the bloodletting would have been somewhat warranted. Instead, we lived to face the same enemy again. The sacrifices of Korea having been flushed into the Chosen Reservoir, the enemy has become a dozen times bolder in remembering what cowards we were at Panmunjom.

The late General MacArthur lamented that we had failed to give our all, as a nation, to the man at the front in Korea and thus shirked the gravest responsibility a nation bears to its troops. We have persisted.

For a start, Senator Frank Church (D-Idaho) of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee let go that we should withdraw from South Viet Nam and leave a regime jokingly termed as "neutralist." The "New York Times" smiled on Senator Church's suggestion.

In South Viet Nam meanwhile, troops heard North Vietnamese stations report the words of Senator Gruening (D-Alaska), "The time has come to cease the useless, senseless loss of American lives in an area not essential to the security of the United States.

Our fight in South Viet Nam is hopeless and not worth the life of one American soldier. The time to get out is now, before more American lives are lost. Just a bit demoralizing?

Ambassador Maxwell Taylor condemned General Khanh and Premier Huong and threatened to withhold aid (the exact method used to horsewhip Laos).

Walter Lippmann came out (surprise!) favoring retreat, even if it amounted to isolationism (Wilson would whirl).

The wheels have begun to turn and the opinion makers are initiating the time proven methods of getting the public to adjust to the situation. Viet Nam will be abandoned to a "neutralist" government in which the Communists will shortly emerge as sole "representatives of the people" and South Viet Nam will be served up as Mao, a' la Laos.

We will have lost, certainly not the first and probably not the last battle of the Great Retreat.

Panhel Signs 534 Women For Spring Rush Program

A total of 534 freshman and upperclass women registered for sorority spring rush in the University Union last week. Miss Jackie Gribbons, assistant dean of women, said that this is an unusually large group of potential spring rushees. Last year 450 women registered.

All rushees and sorority women will return to campus on Wednesday, Feb. 3, to begin their spring rush program during semester break.

The first part of the program consists of required open house parties. The purpose of these parties is to allow the rushees and the sorority women to become acquainted with one another in an informal atmosphere.

Rushees will sign their preferences of one to three sororities Friday, Feb. 19 from 7 to 8:30 a.m. in the Joe E. Brown Theatre.

Bids will be distributed Saturday, Feb. 20.

Throughout the rushing period 13 rush counselors will be available to the rushees to answer questions concerning rush and sorority life.

These women do not affiliate with their sororities during the rushing period. The rush counselors wear Panhellenic crests instead of their sorority pins during this time. Barbara Baley is chairman of the rush counselors.

As each rushee registered she was required to fill out 13 interest cards giving general information such as her home address, University address, and major subject. One card is given to each sorority and one is kept for the Panhellenic file.

An incidental room and board fee of $6.75 is charged each woman participating in rush.

The usual $2 registration fee has been eliminated by Panhellenic Council. Instead, a $2 pledge fee will be charged each woman who completes rush by pledging.

In order to rush a woman must have been enrolled at the University for at least one semester and must have completed at least 12 hours of academic work. She must attain at least a 2.2 accumulative average for the last semester and be in good standing with the University and with AWS.

Bowlers Set For Tourney

Representatives for the Region VII bowling tournament were announced by the Bowling Committee of the Union Activities Organization last week. The tournament will be held at Central Michigan University next month.

Qualifying for the men's team were Tom Berg, John Goldstein, Vince Malik, Denny Peck, and Rich Malik. Sis Bauer, Carla Rupert, Mary Houston, Connie Hunter, and Mary Lou Mooney comprise the women's squad.

Berg, a sophomore, paced the men in the 24-game qualification roll-offs with 4,551 pins for a 190 average. He also was the winner of the all-campus tournament, chalking up 2,224 pins in 12 games.

Miss Bauer led the women in the roll-offs, knocking down 4,337 pins for a 181 average. Last month she captured the women's all-campus crown, garnering 2,127 pins in 12 games. She also won the roll-offs and campus title last year.

The women's team will be defending the regional championship it won in 1964.

Tankers Fall To Mich. State, Then Shackle Kenyon 77-18

The Falcon tankers stormed back onto the win trail Saturday with a stunning 77-18 victory over Kenyon College at Cambier. It was the fourth victory for Bowling Green against a lone defeat.

That defeat came last Wednesday at Michigan State with the Spartans subduing the Falcons, 78-27.

In the Kenyon encounter Bowling Green completely dominated the action, taking a first place in every event. Falcon breaststroker Ron Wood established a pool record with a 2:33.3 clocking in the 200-yard event.

Commenting after the one-sided victory, Coach Stubbs said, "Kenyon just didn't have it."

Against Michigan State the Falcons also performed well but were simply outclassed by the Big-Ten power. The Spartan swimmers took first place in every event but one. Steve Rees established a new varsity record in the 200 yard butterfly even though he finished third in that event. He clipped off the race in 2:12.0.

Wood captured the 200-yard breast stroke with a time of 2:22.1 for the Falcons' only first place finish. "It was a valuable experience for our boys," said Coach Stubbs while reviewing the Spartan meet. "Thirteen of our times were the best of the season," he added. "If we can keep this up we'll be in good shape for Western Michigan this Saturday."

The Falcon freshman tankers opened their season last Friday night with a 53 1/2-40 1/2 victory over Henry Ford Community College. The young Falcons won all but two events and broke three freshman records in their winning performance.

Falcons Stomp WM 88-77; To Entertain Flashes Tonight

By RON WATT
News Sports Editor

Who would have guessed a few games back that the lack-luster Falcons could snap out of their doldrums and get down to playing some serious basketball? Well, it appears that they are in the process of doing just that.

The Falcons are not, by any means, about to become the scourge of the MAC, but they promise to be more interesting, exciting, and competent.

Bowling Green, paced by the "new" Nick Aloï, slashed Western Michigan, 88-77, last Saturday for its second straight victory. The Falcons are now 2-2 in conference play and 1-7 overall.

Tonight at 8 p.m. they play host to the Golden Flashes of Kent State, another team which has experienced rough going this season. The Flashes are 2-3 for the campaign and 1-0 in the MAC after losing to Miami a week ago.

Against Western "confidence" again proved to fashion the key to success for the Falcons. "After beating Toledo last week, the boys realized that they could win when they wanted to," said the pleased Bowling Green coach, Warren Scholler.

"We moved the ball real well against Western and didn't give them the chance to regain themselves significantly," Scholler added.

Scholler, who deserves much credit for the Falcons' revival, was particularly pleased with the performance by Aloï. "That's the real Nick Aloï," Scholler emphasized.

The 6-2, junior guard racked the Bronco defense for 33 points, hitting for 58 per cent from the field and chiming in five of six free throws.

Tom Seiple, another guard who has come a long way since the campaign opened, once again was on target with five field goals in eight tries. He and Aloï teamed up well and continued to display their playmaking ability.

On two occasions in the first half Aloï passed off to the driving Seiple for easy but nevertheless Bronco-baffling baskets.

It was Seiple who put the Falcons ahead for keeps with 17:46 showing in the first period. He plunked in two free throws to make the score 7-5.

Bob Dwors played his usual strong game despite sustaining a muscle pull in his left leg early in the second half. The Falcons' captain shot for 50 per cent from the field and a 15-point total.

Sophomore Ed Behm, who improves with every outing, scored 12 points and particularly dazzled the 5,083 spectators with two consecutive swishes from the right side.

The only starter not in double figures was Sam Mims, but then he was the Falcon's board leader with 12 rebounds.

In Saturday's freshman game, Bowling Green stretched its record to 6-1, defeating Western, 95-74. Walt Piatkowski and Dick Hendrix paced the scoring with 21 and 20 points respectively.

Best Effort Wasn't Enough

Matmen Edged by W. Virginia

Bowling Green's wrestlers dropped a hard-fought away meet, 15-14, to West Virginia last Saturday. In spite of the defeat, Coach Bruce Bellard said it was the Falcons' best effort of the season.

He especially praised Joe Krisko's pinning of Carl Parlovich (147 pounds) and Jim Moore's hard fought tie with defending conference champion Jim Jioio (157 pounds), which may be a moral victory for Bowling Green as Moore scored six stitches while Jioio could only scratch out four.

Bellard said the roughest part of the season is over as the squad has already fought its three toughest opponents—Miami, Western Virginia, and Findlay, the first two accounting for the losses. He said the team should stand a good chance in the rest of the matches.

The biggest problem this year has been injuries which Bellard attributes to the quality of the competition. Right now Moore, Denny Palmer, Ray Cornprobt and Bill Protz are ailing.

On Friday, the wrestlers will travel to Marshall and on Saturday to the campus of undefeated Ohio University.

Are you ready for a multi-million-dollar responsibility?

If you are, there's a place for you on the Aerospace Team—the U. S. Air Force. No organization in the world gives young people a greater opportunity to do vital, responsible work.

For example, just a short while ago a 23-year-old Air Force lieutenant made a startling breakthrough in metallurgy. And a recent All-America tackle is doing advanced research in nuclear weapons.

If you have talent, you'll have a chance to show it in the Air Force. Your work can put you and your country ahead. You can earn your commission at Air Force Officer Training School, a three-month course open to both men and women. To apply, you must be within 210 days of your degree.

For more information, contact the Professor of Air Science. If your campus has no AFOTC, see your local Air Force recruiter.

High School Forensic Group To Debate Nuclear Weapon

Between 100 and 150 high school orators are expected to invade the campus Saturday for the Third Annual High School Forensics Tournament.

The competition, sponsored by the University speech department, is held each year as a service to Ohio high schools. The tournament provides an opportunity for high school speakers to gain experience, said Rollin G. Eakins, director of forensics and University debate coach.

One-hundred and thirty of the strongest speech high schools in Ohio have been invited to send participants.

There will be contests in debate and five individuals events, according to Mr. Eakins. The topics include speaking, oratorical declamation, and humorous declamation.

"Get . . . Go . . . Give"

Speech Clinic Serves As Student Laboratory

BY DONNA MARCIS
News Issue Editor

Terry stood at the board and carefully said the words to which his therapist pointed, "Get . . . go . . . give."

Linda Lawrence, his therapist, praised the boy, and suggested that they play their word game. Terry agreed, and they sat down to practice the words. "Goat . . . goose . . . garden . . . gate."

"Okay, Terry, you can move your marker three spaces up on the ladder. Only four more spaces and you win," Miss Lawrence said. Terry smiled, and they went on to the next round.

Terry is an 8-year-old boy from Swanton receiving therapy from the Speech and Hearing Clinic located in South Hall.

Miss Lawrence, a senior majoring in Speech and Hearing Therapy, is presently enrolled in a course called "Clinical Practice in the College Speech Clinic."

"This course is very beneficial to all therapy majors. It gives us the opportunity to apply the principles that we have learned in all our courses. And, of course, working with the children is a great experience. They are so cute, and so eager to learn," Miss Lawrence said.

Students in this course are either juniors or seniors who already have had a methods course, according to Miss Prudence L. Brown, assistant professor of speech, who is in charge of the course.

"All students are under the supervision of a senior staff, which is composed of faculty members. There also are graduate assistants who help in the clinic," Miss Brown said.

"We have patients that have many different problems. Little Terry has an articulation problem, which means that he mixes his sounds. Right now, we are working on straightening out his 'g' and 'd' confusion," Miss Brown said.

Other problems of the patients that receive therapy include stuttering, cerebral palsy, cleft palates, and voice problems, such as huskiness or hoarseness. Some of the patients are hard of hearing.

This semester, there are 29 students enrolled in the course. Each of them has a minimum of two patients, working with each one for at least one hour a week.

"Students may enroll in Clinical Practice more than one time. Each time they take the course, they work with a minimum of two patients," Miss Brown said.

"This is not considered student teaching. This is an entirely different course. Our therapy majors also have to go through a period of student teaching, similar to all other education majors," Miss Brown said.

The Speech Clinic offers examining services that test prospective patients each Wednesday afternoon by appointment. This is done before they are enrolled in therapy so that the therapist can determine the problem and plan the proper approach.

There are 18 children now taking therapy in the clinic. These include children from as far away as Defiance.

University students also may receive therapy from the clinic. Students who fail to pass the speech and hearing tests that are given when they enter the University, enroll in a guidance and counseling course, which includes therapy from the clinic.

There presently are approximately 45 University students receiving therapy.

Adults also are eligible to receive therapy. In some cases, there have been classes formed for these adults. These classes are under the direction of regular faculty members.

For patients who are not students at the University, there is a fee of $15 per semester.

Industrial Arts To Present Display

The second annual Industrial Arts Display will be held this weekend in the Wayne Room.

The display is being sponsored by the Industrial Arts Club. Preston Foster, president of the club, said the purpose of the display is to "acquaint the faculty and students at the University with some of the projects produced by industrial arts students."

Foster said the display would feature art metal, wood workings, photography projects, printing materials, and works in the field of electronics.

The display will be open from noon to 9 p.m. Friday, Saturday and Sunday.
